A CALIFORNIA EXAMPLE OF COMMUNITY ENTERPRISE.

Neighborhood co-operation has been carried to an admirable length in Imperial county, California, "a green and fertile region that less than a dozen years ago was the grim and desolate heart of the Colorado desert." A leaflet issued by Edward Hyatt, superintendent of public instruction, gives the following interesting particulars:

"In a night a wonderful civilization has sprung up. More than eighty schools are already in operation. The people in this new world are peculiarly free; free from tradition, free from common prejudice, free to do the best things they know. They can go directly to the newest and best educational ideas at once without intermediate evolution.

"I have picked out one of these ideas as worth passing on to the school people in other parts of the State. It is worth reflective attention and is illustrated by a huge automobile that is used at the town of Imperial to knit the surrounding country into a strong school organization. Every day it makes its trips into the country, gathering up the older children for the agricultural high school, and the younger ones for a strong grammar school in the town. The machine has seats in front and a freight compartment in rear.

"It can carry three tons of freight and can travel twenty miles an hour. It can take twenty people at a load and can haul big bundles of trees, plows, harrows, bales of hay, sacks of grain. It gathers up the milk going to the creamery. The farmers and their wives utilize its regular trips to fetch and carry from the town or to go as passengers themselves; fare two bits. The load of children is brought in thirty minutes. They are usually accompanied by one of the school trustees, who lives in the country and does business in town.

"It costs the schools about $100 per month, or less than 15 cents per day per child. The value of the machine is $3,500. Its use compelled the building of good roads immediately. It is a means of communication and an agent of civilization for the community."

Evidently there is great activity in the enforcement of the federal pure food law on the mainland. The mails are bringing from the Department of Agriculture many reports of judgments in cases of adulteration and misbranding. Articles the subjects of prosecutions, reported in issues of a single date recently, are calcium acid phosphate, cream, desiccated egg, fish, ice, metabolized cod liver oil compound, syrup, vanilla flavor and vinegar. Another day's batch comprises black pepper, cream, daudrine, lemon flavor, maple syrup (2), milk, salt and vinegar. Between federal and local pure food law enforcement there is at last a chance that the people will be fairly protected from deficient and dangerous qualities in the food and drink they buy.

Death has again made a sad gap in the community—not, as in recent cases, startlingly close together, the removal of an old hand-mark, but that of an able public servant in the prime of life. Dr.
Duncan's place as a specialist the government will find it hard to fill, while all who knew him will painfully realize a personal loss. For his wife, but lately wedded, and his mother the condolence of the community in their bereavement will be profound.

Every example of arbitration of international differences tends to bring nearer the era of perpetual world peace. That of the United States and Mexico, just accepted by the latter, to adjust a boundary dispute, is a fresh assurance that North America will never more see war over a misunderstanding capable of being removed by evidence.

Aviation has its perils for the watching multitude as well as the aviators. The Budapest casualty, where a biplane plunged into a crowded grandstand, is what nearly happened in many previous instances. In one case reported, the aviator wrecked his machine, risking his life and receiving severe injury, to avoid smashing through a crowd.

It looks as if the postal savings bank is going to be an accomplished fact. The House majority of nearly two to one carrying the bill would indicate that the country must want the institution.

TRADE OF THE UNITED STATES WITH CANADA.

Exports from the United States to Canada show a larger growth in the current fiscal year than those to any other of the important countries of the world. For the ten months ending with April, for which the Bureau of Statistics has just prepared a detailed record of the commercial movements, the exports to Canada amount to 174 1-2 million dollars, against 129 million in the corresponding months of last year, and for the month of April alone 22 million dollars, against 15 million in April of last year. The increase in exports for the ten months in question is thus 45 million dollars, while the total increase in exports to all parts of the world during the same period is but 55 million, the figures in each case relating to exports of domestic merchandise. To France the export figures show for the period in question an increase of 9 million dollars, to Germany 11 million, to Argentina 5 1-2 million, to Mexico 6 1-2 million, to Australia 2 million, and to Canada, as above indicated, 45 million dollars.

This increase in exports to Canada occurs largely in manufactures.
Coal shows an increase of about 2 million dollars; cotton, about 2 million; wheat, about 1 1-2 million; horses, about a half million; and furs and fur skins, about a half million; but aside from these the bulk of the increase occurs in manufactured articles. Agricultural implements show an increase from 1 1-2 million dollars to 2 1-2 million; automobiles from 1 million to 3 million; cotton manufactures from 1 1-2 to 2 1-4 million; and lumber from 2 1-2 million to nearly 4 million. During the same period scientific instruments increased nearly 1 million; wire over half a million; builders' hardware 1-2 a million; and books, maps and engravings about 1-2 a million; while many other manufactures show smaller increases, though in many cases the percentage of gain is large. Meats show but slight increase, and in some cases a decline in quantity. Mineral oils show in most cases a decline, though lubricating and heavy paraffine oils show a slight increase.
